Module Description

Research Methodology

Research methodology is the specific procedure or technique used to identify, select, process, and analyze information about a topic. In a research paper, the methodology section allows the reader to critically evaluate a study's overall validity and reliability.

Computer Application

Some influences of computers on theory and methodology in cognitive research are discussed. Theoretical concept that cognitive science has borrowed from computer science includes processing algorithms, processing rates, information organization and information selection. The application of these constructs to human information processing is considered, with illustrations from memory and reading research.

Dissertation (Thesis Work) By Research

The objective of this proposition is maintained by argument. A dissertation advancing an original point of view as a result of research, especially as a requirement for an academic degree, a hypothetical proposition, especially one put forth without proof. This course provides a thorough, step – by - step guide that helps students develop the research skills critical to today's business environment. The lectures blend traditional research methods with detailed instruction on how to use and evaluate research technologies. The course constitutes examples and insightful tips to help students to get the most current wealth of resources for their personal and professional research efforts. It provides coverage of the research process, problem selection, sampling and generalizability
